The object of yesterday's meeting was to commence a new Anti-Slavery agitation. The resolutions were practical and direct. To make the enormities of the East African Slave Trade as widely known as possible, and to urge the Government by petitions and other means to vigorous efforts for its suppression, are the courses which experience suggests, and which Kwong-fook-we to travelling trader.

The case is really one in which exaggeration is almost impossible. The Slave Trade of Zanzibar is actually THE Undersigned are now prepared to grant, desoluting a large part of the Eastern shore of the African Continent. The little island against Fire on First-class Buildings, to an exof Zanzibar lies jest off the coast, and is admirably placed for developing the trade of the whole region between the great lakes and Nile sources and the sea. But unhappily the most premium charged for insurance; such discount valuable of all the exports which Africa can send out are the inhabitants themselves. All liey. through the idle and Inxurious East there is a perpetual demand for slaves. In the harems and the buzuars, in the fields and the cities of the whole Mahommedan world, there is an hereditary need for the services of a embject race. Society has been founded on slavery, and our Western feeling about it is utterly unknown. This perpetual demand is almost sure to create a supply. The old course of the traffic was down the Nile; we have partly stopped will be allowed to all contributors. that route, and it has taken another. Mr. Stanley's description of the Zanzibar trade is borne out by all the evidence which has been collected on the subject. There are in Zanzibar a large number of wealthy Banians who have probably assembled there for the sake of this traffic. They lend money to the adventurous Arabs, who form expeditions and march inwards to capture slaves. They are absolutely ruthless, and will burn a village and kill half its inhabitants for the sake of making a few cap- upon insurances effected with this Company. tives. They return with their epoil to the coast, set sail from a barbour in which we cannot interfere with there, run the gauntlet of our cruisers in the open sea, and then, arrived at Zanzibar, divide the spoils of their venture with the Banian capitalists. The profits are FIHE Undersigned having been appointed of course large. The slaves being stolen, their captors can afford to lose a large part of thom in the transit; the price they fetch leave a good profit if only a percentage reach the market. Mr. Stanley cays that the Banians make a hundred per cent. on every lar they advance. Zanzibar is, however, an independent PHENIX FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY State, and we cannot seize its vessels in its own waters. We have Treaties with it which recognise its sovereignty; and it is to those Treaties the impunity of the trade is due, and Port, are prepared to grant Policies against as Mr. Otway said yesterday, they must be got | Fire to the extent of $40,000, on Buildings, or rid of. sibility of stopping the demand. In the West we were at least helped by the fact that the Governments whose subjects were willing to buy slaves, and thus fostered the trade, were pledged to its suppression. The right of search, which our cruisers asserted, embroiled us with the United States, but the United States soon followed our example in declaring the Slave Trade piracy. But the whole Eastern world still regards it as a legitimate traffic. Asia ha always preyed on Africa, To stop slavery in the East would be a revolution in the social system of that stagment and unwholesome world. Such a revolution would be one of the greatest benefits ever conferred on humanity, but the very magnitude of the change only shows the difficulty of entirely eradicating the slave traffic. Can we so hermetically seal the African coast that the demand for slaves in the East shall not be able to draw a supply from the teeming multitudes of simple, easy, unwarlike people who fill that continent? The task is a great one, yet not utterly hopeless. The resolution proposed by Lord Harrowby and seconded by Mr. Otway, pledged the meeting of yesterday to use all constitutional methods to abolish the traffic-meaning, of course, means within the bounds of our own Constitution. We are a little pledged to the Sultan of Zanzibar from having some years ago, arbitrated in • a quarrel between that potentate and his relative, the Imam of Muscat. There is a kind of compensation tribute of some thousands a year paid by Zanzibar to Muscat, and it is said that by taking this amount on our own Ruler to abolish Slave Trading altogether. HOW THE SHOE PINCHED.

When I last made a memorandum, we were at Ephesus. We are in Syria now, encamp ed in the mountains of Lebanon. The in terregnum has been long; both as to time and distance. We brought not a relic from Ephesus? After gathering up fragments of sculptured marbles and breaking ornaments from the interior work of the Mosques; and after bringing them, at a cost of infinite trouble, and fatigue, five miles on muleback to the railway depôt; a government officer compelled all who had such things to disgorge! He had an order from Constantinople to look out for our party, and see that we carried nothing off. It was a wise, a just, and a well- riage to that lady. He has impressed me deserved rebuke, but it created a sensation, that she is to be my wife." I never resist a temptation to plunder a stranger's premises without feeling insufferably vain about it. This time I felt proud in an excited tone; "the Lord never could beyond expression. WHAT THE INSPECTORS BLY ABOUT HER LOSS -THE INADEQUACY OF THE LIFE BAVING APPARATUS. (N. Y. Times, 12th November.) In the deposition made by one of the suriving passengers of the ill-fated Missouri, is a statement that, on the surface, appeared to go for toward accounting for the origin of the fire, and at the same time reflects upon the equipments of the ship in fire-safety apparatus. The inspectors of the local Bureau, when questionmade the following statements concerning these points: The felting of the boilers, which, according to the deposition alluded to, was only put on a few hours before the starting CMALL STEAMERS AND STEAM hour of the ship," is not used with a view to fire safety at all. It is used to prevent. the radiation of heat by the boiler, thus saving considerably in the amount of coal used during a voyage. It is used wholly at he option of the owners of vessels, and is not required by the laws regulating safety in boilers: consequently the fact that it was only put on a few minutes before starting could not be urged as a dereliction on the part of the engineers or had been laid up for repairs during some weeks difficulty at St. Peter's Church as they did four houts would have met every legal requireat the parish on Sixth Avenue.
